IMMEDIATE RELEASE - UPDATED

Presenting a Screening of the Award-Winning Film Red Gold

The exquisite film celebrating the salmon way of life will be at Gonzaga University, for one night only February 10, 2009 at the Cataldo Globe Room.

KETCHIKAN, AK—Red Gold, a 1-hour documentary film on the proposed Pebble Mine in Southwest Alaska by acclaimed filmmakers Ben Knight and Travis Rummel, goes beyond the conflict, giving fair voice to commercial, subsistence and sport fishermen, as well as to mine officials.

The multi award-winning film (Audience Choice, Telluride Mountainfilm; Best of Festival, Ellensburg Film Festival; Cinematic Excellent, Newburyport Documentary Film Festival) Red Gold will screen in the Globe Room of Cataldo Hall, and will be followed with an interactive, engaging discussion between audience members and PEBBLE PARTNERSHIP CEO JOHN SHIVELY, ILIAMNA DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION'S LISA REIMERS, NORMAN VAN VACTOR with LEADER CREEK FISHERIES, and WASHINGTON TROUT UNLIMITED COUNCIL PRESIDENT MARK TAYLOR.

Don't miss this premiere screening of the only film documenting the developing story of the Pebble Mine.

ABOUT THE FILMMAKERS—Colorado filmmakers Ben Knight and Travis Rummel of Felt Soul Media spent more than two months in Bristol Bay filming Red Gold, their first full-length film. Previous short films include The Hatch and Running Down the Man. Read more about the filmmakers at www.feltsoulmedia.com.
